

Dear Colleagues,

I am pleased to tell you that our school will have a CBSA book team this academic year. The CBSA was created by a group of Colorado teachers and librarians in 1985 with a purpose of inspiring and encouraging young adult reading. To learn more, check out this website:

The names and grade levels of the students that are participating are:

These students will get a chance to discover newly published books and discuss them with their peers both in our school and across the state. After these conversations, they will choose this year's CBSA winning books. This experience will add value to their year and beyond. It would be great if you have them in your classes, to check in with them and see what they are reading.

When you are on the Colorado Blue Spruce Award website, check out the Reader's Choice tab and consider having your students participate in the Readers Choice award starting in February and ending by mid-April.

Best,
